Johnson Asks RFK to Manage His Campaign

By JOSEPH E. MOHAT
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has asked Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy to manage his presidential campaign, informed sources said today.

They said the offer was made Wednesday at the same time Johnson told Kennedy he was eliminating him from consideration as a vice presidential candidate.

The offer reportedly is under consideration. "I don't want to get into that," Kennedy said Friday when asked about reports of the offer before he left for Hyannis Port, Mass., for the weekend. Kennedy aides refused to be drawn into a discussion.

Johnson reportedly summoned the 38-year-old attorney general to the White House around noon Wednesday and told him he was not being considered for the second spot on the Democratic ticket.

Then the President suggested that Kennedy consider taking the job of campaign manager — the task he handled for his brother, the late President John F. Kennedy, in 1960.

Later, presidential adviser McGeorge Bundy, a carryover from the Kennedy administration, called the attorney general, presumably at Johnson's behest. He wondered if Kennedy shouldn't voluntarily withdraw from vice presidential consideration — perhaps by "leaking" such a decision to a newspaper columnist.

Kennedy declined, pointing out that as attorney general he shouldn't be and wasn't running for the vice presidency and that to announce a "withdrawal" could seem ridiculous.

Thursday, at a news conference, Johnson gave his description of an ideal vice presidential candidate. He should be acceptable everywhere, Johnson said. Kennedy is unpopular in the South.

Then, that evening, Johnson announced he had excluded all members of the Cabinet, including Kennedy, and those who meet regularly with it.

Kennedy is believed to wield considerable influence over Democratic machinery in a number of key states and it is this knowledge, several sources suggest, that led Johnson to ask Kennedy's services as campaign manager.

As for Kennedy, according to the most reliable reports:

1. He is puzzled, but not bitter, over the way Johnson handled the matter. He is likely to campaign for Johnson as he promised last January. Whether he will manage that campaign remains to be seen.

2. He has told political supporters across the nation for weeks that he would not fight for the nomination he believed was Johnson's to bestow. He never planned nor will he attempt a convention stampede because he thinks it would hurt the party and his future.

H—CMFW MW BM RA A RR

3. He will remain attorney general at least through the election and possibly, if Johnson is elected, through the January inauguration.

4. He remains deeply interested in foreign affairs — especially in South and Central America and Africa — and could be persuaded to accept a post bearing on these areas in a new Johnson administration.

5. He will attend the Democratic convention in Atlantic City as a member of the Massachusetts delegation.

Discrimination Against the Dead

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—A civil rights suit was filed in Circuit Court Thursday charging a Peoria cemetery with racial discrimination against the dead.

Billy V. Clemons, 33, a Negro, charged that the Memorial Gardens Association, which operates the Swan Lake Memory Gardens Cemetery, refused to sell him two adult burial plots. Clemons' suit, which asks $1,000 damages, also alleges that an agent from the association informed him that another cemetery was the only one in the city where Negroes could be buried.

King Admits Relations In North Are Bad

ATLANTA (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. says race relations in the North are becoming worse than those in the South — and the outlook is not hopeful. "The North is potentially more explosive," King said Friday after his return from New York.

"There is an urgency. If the states, the cities and the federal government temporize and feel that they can make small gains, we are in for some very tragic periods of rioting and violence."

King said swift, decisive action is needed in the North's big cities to clean up Negro ghettos; otherwise, more violence is inevitable.

He suggested that a special pilot project might be made of Harlem for the President's anti-poverty program.

"The cities can't do it alone. They must have help from the state and the federal government," King said.

He said he was optimistic about the South.

"I think in the South you will have in the next few years a totally desegregated society — with the exception of rural areas," King said. "The South can pass the North in race relations."

"With the exception of Mississippi, I am much more hopeful about the South in race relations than I am about many sections of the North."

"The main difference grows out of the fact that in the North, the discrimination is more subtle, covert and hidden than in the South, where it is often legal, overt and open."

"Now it is precisely for this reason that the problem is much more difficult to get at in the North and much more frustrating to the Negro."

"I am not saying the North is incapable of redemption and of solving this problem — only I do not yet see the program alive that will solve it. The rioting should challenge the northern communities to move ahead."

"I see this as the North's deepest moment of challenge and its response may well determine the destiny of America."

Chicago Not too Good for Migrants

By MARK HARRIS

CHICAGO (AP) — For thousands of Southern Appalachian white persons a journey northward represents the hope of an end to poverty and deprivation.

But for many of the 25,000 migrants living in Chicago, the city has meant only continued despair. Uneducated, unskilled and unaccustomed to city ways, the migrants find the transition from backwood to urban setting almost impossible.

Part of President Johnson's antipoverty bill is aimed at correcting the economic conditions that drive the migrants northward. But the dislocated migrants also have become a welfare problem in Chicago, where they have settled in a five-mile-long, one-mile wide area on the North Side known as Uptown.

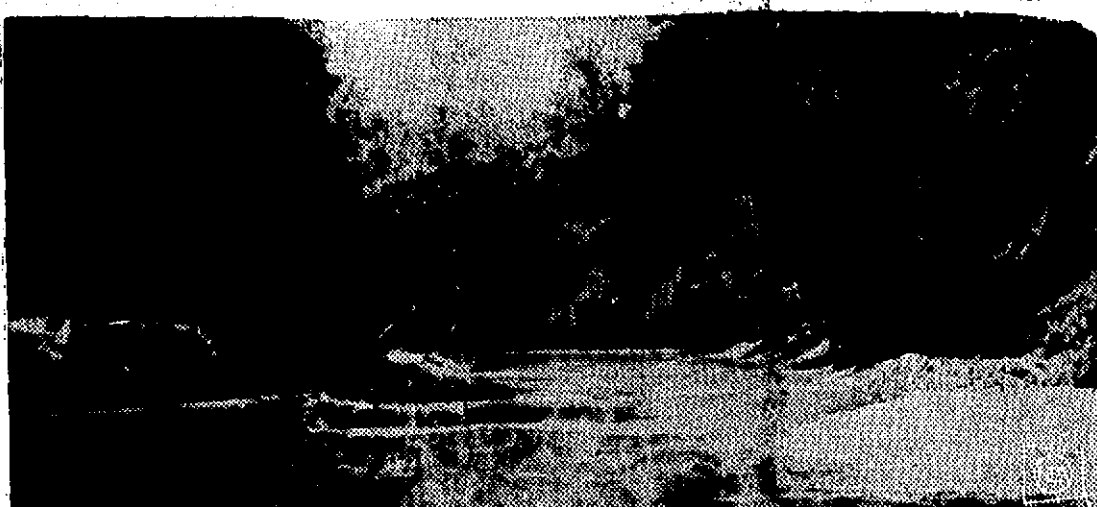

"One of the biggest problems for the migrant is exploitation," said Dewey W. Wood, director of the Chicago office of the Council of the Southern Mountains.

"The migrants pay $27 to $35 dollars a week rent for unbelievable apartments. Often four families (of six or seven persons each) share the same bathroom," Dewey said.

Wood says many of them would be better off at home in the "security of their catch-drained mountains." But, he asks, "what more incentive to migrate would any of us need if our cash income for an entire month was $600?"

Torn between the better jobs of the North and the yearning for the hills of West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee, the migrants often pack up and go south again, only to return the next week.

"Back home," Wood said, "they can squat on their haunches for hours on the porch of the County court house, but as soon as a number of them congregate on a corner here, they're picked up for loitering."

ROCK CREEK PARK, Washington, D.C.—The park runs through the city, taking up 1,752 acres. National Park Service has set up 40 picnic areas at various spots. There are numerous playgrounds and riding trails.

This Is No Panic Button But Poisonous Plants Grow Every Place, Including Back Yards

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

A few weeks ago Mrs. Fred Gray, whose husband was recently transferred from Hope to Hot Springs with the SW Bell Telephone Co., called my attention to a magazine, "Family Safety," distributed by Bell Telephone Co. Being a nurse she was particularly interested in one article and suggested passing the information contained therein along to the Back Yard.

"Poison in the Back Yard" explained that poisonous plants grow everywhere—even in your own house. And a surprising number of people have died after eating them. No, we aren't trying to push a "panic button," but a few pertinent facts are being presented to try to incur precaution.

Many poisonous plants are so common and seemingly harmless that you don't suspect their toxic quality. People may know that leaves from the oleander bush, grown indoors and outdoors all over the country, are extremely poisonous, but it may come as a surprise that many people have died merely from eating steaks that have been speared on oleander twigs and roasted over a fire (notice that no reference is made here of charcoal or fat, merely oleander twigs).

Rhododendron contains a poison that has shown up in the honey made by bees that visited the plant. The bee doesn't know to stay away from such plants, but your children should be taught to avoid chewing or munching on leaves. The lethal juice from one leaf of the popular Christmas flower, the poinsettia, can kill a child, and the berries of the mistletoe have proven deadly to adults who have used them for a medicinal tea. Probably the greatest threat to children are plants with small, attractive poisonous berries. Warn your children about eating such unfamiliar berries.

One part of a plant may be edible while another is poisonous. For instance, twigs of cherry trees release cyanide when eaten, and peach tree leaves contain hydrocyanic acid, one of the most dangerous poisons known. Rhubarb stalks, commonly used in baking and cooking, of course, are not toxic, but the leaf blades contain oxalic acid which causes severe damage to the kidneys. Better "stick to" the part of the plant which is familiar and which has only brought tasty enjoyment to people for years.

Castor bean seeds have caused widespread concern among officials because they are so readily available and can be purchased in any garden store. With proper usage, they are a boon to horticulturists, but in the hands of a child one seed, eaten, creates enough blood poison to be fatal. It was not discovered until 1961 that the seeds of the wisteria, a vine that is both beautiful and quite common, are poisonous.

The only safeguard, authorities agree, is to keep all plants away from very small children who may nibble on them, and to teach children never to put in their mouths any plant or berry not commonly used as food. Adults, of course, shouldn't make "medicinal" concoctions from plants or chew on plant stems. If someone does ingest a dangerous plant, call a physician immediately for his advice. Don't try home remedies, and sometimes it is not advisable to induce vomiting, contrary to the belief of many. Let the doctor tell you what to do.

AF Defends Against Unusual Suit

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Air Force is defending itself here against an unusual charge — That 150 gallons of jet fuel jettisoned by one of its pilots caused a fire 15 days after it sprayed a house.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Gilmore of Kemah, Tex., filed suit seeking $12,730 damages, claiming essentially that the fuel remained in the ground, and that fumes from it rose into the house, which they had rented, setting off the fire. The Gilmore's home is about a mile northeast of Little Rock Air Force Base.

Lt. Col. Ralph Albright jettisoned two fuel tanks on his trainer plane Nov. 1, 1961, when part of the engine came loose and he was forced to land without power. One of the two 150-gallon tanks struck near the Gilmore home.

Plaintiff's witnesses testified they believed the fuel sank to the moisture line in the ground, rose later and vaporized. Maj. Ralph H. Wilson, fuels officer at the base, testified that in his opinion the fuel would have evaporated within three hours.

Diverted Land Can Be Used in Hempstead

The following telegram was received late Friday from Congressman Oren Harris and Senator Bill Fulbright:

"The Agriculture Department advises today that Hempstead County is one of 18 Arkansas counties offered haying and grazing privileges on diverted crop lands due to drought."

ASC Committee will have authority to permit livestock grazing and hay harvesting on land diverted from crop production. Farmers are required to obtain approval from their County ASC Committee for this relief."

Fgn. Policy Changes Are Inevitable

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Chinese firecrackers sputter and crackle on the world diplomatic stage, and a strange spectacle is unfolding.

Confusing changes in the global picture are in prospect, foreboding new foreign policy problems for the next U.S. administration.

At the center of the spectacle is West Germany, like a ponderous coquette at an international ball. Suitors in both camps eye one another with hostile suspicion.

The Soviet Union and Red China, each in its own way, court Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's regime. President Charles de Gaulle's France, like a jilted swain, is sulking. The United States remains Bonn's favored suitor, but the long-range possibilities could make Washington jumpy.

Premier Khrushchev and Soviet propaganda still vigorously accuse the West German regime of plotting revenge and seeking nuclear arms for nefarious purposes. But Khrushchev now is virtually committed to go to Bonn, probably late this year, to talk with Erhard on a wide assortment of issues. On political issues, such as Berlin, they may make scant progress, but on the economic side the story could be different.

The Red Chinese appear to find unwelcome the notion that Khrushchev might mend his relations with West Germany. French recognition of Peking has increased Red China's interest in Europe. This seems to worry the Kremlin.

Apart from Red Chinese muscle-flexing, there are a number of reasons why the Russians at this stage might want to play ball with West Germany.

Moscow has been restive about French-German cooperation, which reached a point of near-euphoria early in 1963 when Konrad Adenauer still was at the helm in Bonn. The two countries have less in the way of a common policy now. Erhard does not buy the idea of a European policy independent of the United States.

There's a lot of ferment in the West. Often, ideology seems to be sidetracked in the East in favor of old-fashioned power politics in which prospective trade becomes a potent weapon to pry alliances apart.

Demands Filing Fee Be Returned

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Doyle Breshers third ward alderman candidate here demanded return of his $400 filing fee Thursday and said he was withdrawing from the race after a balloting mixup.

The mixup came in Tuesday's Democratic primary when the names of alderman candidates appeared only on ballots in the wards from which they were to be elected. A 1958 Arkansas law says the names of all ward candidates in cities of 5000 or more population must appear on all ballots.

Arkansas River Money Gets Okay

By GORDON BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barring the unexpected, the Arkansas River development program will be voted $98 million by Congress this year—sufficient to keep the project on schedule for completion in 1970.

President Johnson's announcement Thursday that he is recommending that Congress provide an additional $14 million for the development was the key to the situation.

Johnson recommended in January that Congress appropriate a total of $84 million for various phases of the project whose chief feature is a 9-foot navigation channel from Mississippi river to near Tulsa, Okla.

Army Engineers, however, said they could not maintain the present construction schedule with $84 million. They said certain features would fall behind schedule with the result the channel couldn't be completed until 1971 at the earliest. The said $15 million more, or a total of $99 million, would be needed.

Heeding pleas of Arkansas and Oklahoma sponsors of the project, the House Appropriations Committee hiked the total to $99 million but Army Engineers said they still would need more.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., set out to persuade Johnson to recommend a higher figure and conferred with the president and budget bureau officials numerous times.

McClellan said today the Army Engineers had assured him $98 million would be adequate to maintain the construction schedule.

In announcing his action, Johnson said there would be a loss of $11 million through added construction costs if the project completion were delayed one year. This was one of McClellan's big arguments.

And in his message to Congress requesting the additional amount, Johnson said completion of the navigation channel is of great significance to the industrial development of Arkansas and Oklahoma; that the completion would provide an important stimulus to economically distressed areas in the two states.

McClellan said he anticipates no difficulty in getting Congress to approve the total amount now that it is in the President's budget. The Senate Appropriations Committee is due to complete work on the water projects bill next week and early Senate passage is expected.

As the budget now stands, these amounts are recommended for the individual projects in the program:

Arkansas River bank stabilization $15 million; navigation locks and dams $51.5 million; Dardanelle Dam $10 million; Ozark Dam, $1 million; Kerr Dam $9 million; Webber Falls Reservoir $2.5 million; Eufaula Reservoir $3 million; and Keystone Dam $6 million. Sponsors had asked an additional $500,000 for Ozark Dam and another $500,000 for the navigation locks and dams.

Idea Builds Churches for Suburbs

By MIKE COCHRAN

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — "Thank you," wrote the minister, "for taking us out of the beggins business."

The letter is a prized possession of A. B. Culbertson, whose germ of an idea a decade ago turned into a bustling investment business.

His idea also built hundreds of churches for booming suburbia. The problem simply was this: Persons moving to the new suburbs are burdened with mortgages, car payments, the need to put up at least a decent front.

These people do not have $2,000 or $3,000 each to contribute toward building a church.

But Culbertson knew their credit was good.

Basically, says Culbertson, "We've given respectability to church obligations."

Church members, possibly meeting in a school, agree to a bond program to build a church structure.

Culbertson makes the arrangements and the church members sell the bonds. Mostly they sell bonds to themselves, borrowing the money from a bank.

The bonds are secured by the church property and are paid, along with the interest, from regular Sunday contributions.

"It is a self-propelling proposition," says Culbertson, a spry, 70-year-old Baptist layman. "We just ride herd from the moment we sign up a church until the last bond is paid for."

Most savings and loan associations ignored churches' financial needs 10 years ago, Culbertson said in an interview. Bank standards were too rigorous to be met by new, struggling churches.

"Now they're bidding for church loans," Culbertson said. Culbertson said three factors contributed to the widespread demand for new churches:

"The population explosion, influx of people from rural areas to cities and mushrooming suburbia.

Success of the A. B. Culbertson & Co. formula is reflected in hundreds of churches across 14 states.

Culbertson began by experimenting with a loan to a group in Borger, Tex.

"It was successful, and we just started rolling," he said.

"There was no church loan competition then and it was pitiful how folks were trying to get people to help them."

The Culbertson concern now services about $65 million in church and institutional loans.

"There are great spiritual and moral resources backing these investments," he declared.

"Even during the depression, banks failed and businesses closed, but by and large churches paid their debts — not all at that time, but they paid them, 100 cents on the dollar."

Arkla Asks to Extend Gas Pipeline

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co. asked the State Public Service Commission today for authority to construct a 154-mile natural gas transmission pipeline across North Central Arkansas.

Estimated cost of the line is $12.3 million.

Arkla also asked permission to lay a series of lateral lines from the transmission line to serve Newport, Jonesboro and Paragould.

One of the laterals would serve the Arkansas Electric Co. steam generating plant under construction near Augusta.

The laterals would cost an additional $2 million.

Arkla said construction would begin as soon as PSC permission is granted.

Pictures Show Moon Landing Could Be Done

By RALPH DIGHTON
Associated Press Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Historic pictures taken by Ranger 7 are pretty good evidence men can land on the moon without much change required for spaceships now being designed.

That's the consensus of a board of scientists who Friday night released 10 of the 4,314 sensational photographs Ranger 7 snapped in the final 16 minutes and 40 seconds before it crashed on the moon at 8:25 a.m. (EST) Friday morning.

The first close-up pictures ever taken of the moon — termed 1,000 times better than any made heretofore from spacecraft or with earth telescopes — showed that even its vast, apparently smooth "seas" are pocked with craters, some as small as dishpans.

There may be some dust on the moon, in layers up to a foot thick, but not deep enough to bury a landing vehicle, the scientists concluded. And, underneath the dust, evidence indicates, is a hard primary layer. Whether it would support the weight of a large manned spaceship cannot be determined from photographs alone.

To these conclusions announced after several hours study Friday night, additional evaluations will be added today at a presidential press conference.

Dr. William H. Pickering, director of Jet Propulsion Laboratory which made Ranger 7 and released the first pictures, left late Friday to attend the White House session.

President Johnson earlier telephoned congratulations to Pickering and others at the laboratory, which was much criticized in recent months for six straight failures in the $200 million Ranger moon research program.

At Friday's news conference where slides of the historic moon pictures were shown, Dr. Gerard Kuiper, of the Lunar and Planetary Laboratory of the University of Arizona, said the most significant thing about them is that they reveal no unanticipated problems to be met in the design of moon landing craft.

At least part of the area photographed by Ranger 7 — a northern extension of the Sea of Clouds southwest of the center of the face of the moon — would be unsuitable for landing because of the large number of small craters, Kuiper said.

"If you want to land a ship, you want to do it with as little damage as possible," he said. "So you pick an area where the ship is not likely to tip over or have to land on a litter of debris."

The thousands of tiny pock marks, he said, seemed to cluster at some distance from large primary craters such as Copernicus, about 200 miles north of the target zone.

This indicates the big craters were created by meteors and meteorites which exploded on impact and threw out fragments of many sizes, Kuiper explained.

Between the big primary craters and the clusters of secondary craters around them, however, are relatively "clean" areas which could be good landing sites, he said.

Dr. Eugene Shoemaker of the U.S. Geological Survey at Flagstaff, Ariz., another of the five experts who studied Ranger 7's photographs, suggested that future moon probes study the texture of the surface in the centers of large craters.

Shoemaker was asked if he would be afraid to step out of a landing craft onto the kind of surface shown in the photographs. He answered: "I wouldn't be very worried."

He said, however, there was no way to check the load-bearing strength of the moon's crust from photographs alone.

The photographs, taken from 1,300 miles out down to 1 foot, seemed to resolve an old controversy over whether dust on the moon is thick enough to swallow a landing craft.

The fact that rocks thrown from the big craters often were still visible in the bottoms of the shallow craters they created indicated that the dust ranges from a few inches to no more than a foot in depth, the scientists said.

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"When Gracie retired, I went to work," says George Burns, 68, and working harder than a beetle. Burns had just returned from five weeks in Nevada where he regaled the dice throwers with songs and patter. He reported to Warner Bros. to begin his starring role in "Wendy and Me," a television series which he also is producing and helping to write.

In addition, he is producing and supervising the scripts of another Warner Bros. series, "No Time for Sergeants." And he continued overseeing "Mister Ed," which he helped create.

If he is overworked, he doesn't show it. "I'm doing what I love to do," Burns said. "Retire? Never. I was retired during all those years I worked with Gracie. It's no wonder she wanted to quit; she did all the work. If we had 35 pages of dialogue, she had to memorize 25 pages of it. All I did was say, 'Tell me about your brother,' and that would start her off."

Burns told how he found a new home at Warner Bros. "The studio had Connie Stevens, whom I greatly admired, and I had the idea for a series, which Warner liked. The story has me, George Burns, buying an apartment building to give me an audience for my singing. One of the tenants is Connie, who plays an airlines stewardess. I weave in and out of the stories, talk to the audience and sing a song now and then."

"J. L. Warner was so pleased with how 'Wendy and Me' turned out that he asked me to take over 'No Time for Sergeants' as well."

Is it possible that George is stagestruck? "Sure, I am," he said. "But that's true of all of us who have done well in the business; we all love to work. Jack Benny is that way. So is Bob Hope. Milton Berle? Why, all you have to do is open a refrigerator door and the light causes him to go into 20 minutes of jokes."

"But it's true of the younger generation, too. Nothing could hold back an Ann-Margret or a Bobby Darin. They have the same thing that we have; the drive to please an audience. It happens that I discovered Ann-Margret, but I don't take any bows for it. If I hadn't discovered her, someone else would have. You can't hold back talent."

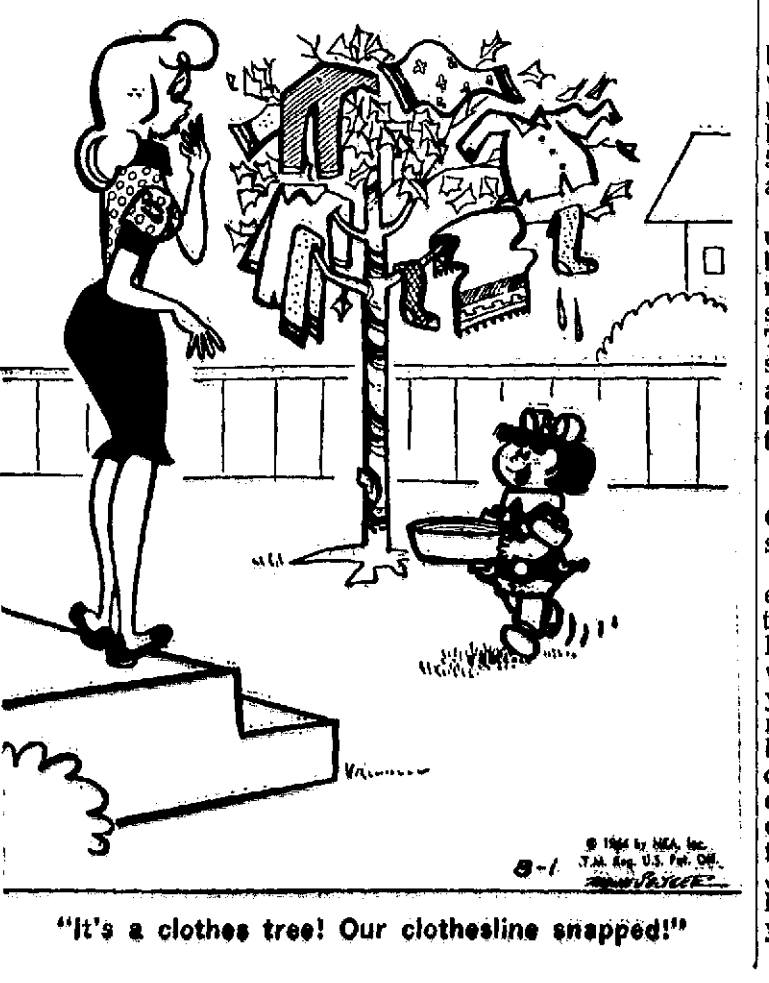

Laboratory Praised for Moon Shot

WASHINGTON (AP)—On behalf of the nation, President Johnson expressed congratulations and thanks today to the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in California on the successful shot at the moon by Ranger 7.

"This is a basic step forward, in our orderly program to assemble the scientific knowledge necessary for man's trip to the moon," Johnson said.

He called it a magnificent achievement, which has helped to advance the peaceful exploration of space. He gave his congratulations by telephone to Dr. William H. Pickering, director, and Dr. Homer E. Newell, associate administrator of space science and application, at Pasadena, Calif.

A Short Short Story

WISE GUY

By Steve April
I can tell you this—some days it don't pay to get out of the sack. Like today.

I'm in advertising. Not exactly the fancy Madison Avenue end, I handle distribution. Like, if you want to cover the town, door to door, with free samples or a leaflet, you hire me and in turn, I hire a bunch of stiff, mostly guys down and on the way out. I pay the minimum hourly rate and while I avoid outright burns and wins, I have to watch 'em like a hawk or they'll goof off. In fact, sometimes I gave 'em a good "executive" punch in the belly if they act up. It's that kind of job I pay the men off at the end of each day as they usually need eating money.

"Most of these slobos are mental flyweights. Sometimes I work a minor racket. At the end of the day while paying, I tell 'em, 'It's not my idea, but you a petty agent, but as I offhanded there's a 50-cent initiation fee.'"

All right, that may sound like a petty agent, but as I often have 60 men working, it means $30 for me—not a bad days extra money.

You can see I had a lot of things going for me, and these poor slobos, most of them, didn't have enough sense, or enough gumption to realize what was happening. I had a real soft racket.

Now and then I run up against a wise guy who refuses to kick back, and believe you me, he don't work again! Which is what happened yesterday. He was a moon-faced fellow, about 32, his clothes okay but on the tacky side. Said his name was James. He was a good worker and fast. When we knocked off for lunch my hard luck started—either in the greasy joint where I ate, or maybe later when I was buying cigarettes, somebody slipped me a counterfeited dollar. I wouldn't have been hooked if I wasn't keeping an eye on my lazy stiff. This bill was a real bum job, not even printed evenly. It was sloppy for even queer money.

So I'm stuck and it was such a cockeyed bill it would be tough passing it on. Comes 6 p.m. and I'm paying off $10 per man, collecting my 50 cents "dues" from each man until I come to James.

He says, "Wait up, before you deduct anything from my pay, I want a receipt from this alleged union."

"What's the matter, don't you trust me?"

"Oh I trust you as far as I can throw you, I like to have things proper. Let me see a receipt and I'll pay the half a buck."

"Suppose I tell you I'm supposed to deduct $2 for withholding tax?" I ask. On the real stupid ones I sometimes pull that, but it's risky.

"If you're supposed to deduct it, go ahead, but give me a tax receipt, James says clamy.

"Don't bother showing up tomorrow," I tell him, "or you might get a knuckle lunch for a receipt!"

James sort of pulls himself up and he's a lot bigger than I thought. He says, "I'll show up tomorrow and if you don't hire me, I'll see what the City Labor Board has to say about it!"

"Troublemaker, hey?"

"Nope, but I don't like being stepped on. Pay me."

I gave him a $5 bill and then quickly counted out five $1 bills including the counterfeit buck. I said, "Blow, but fast, before I lose my temper."

"DEAR ABBY"

STRICTLY FOR GIRLS!

By Abigail Van Buren
Dear Abby: I am 17. I copied something out of your book, DEAR TEENAGER, and typed it up and I carry it with me. It has helped me a lot. Two of my girl friends did the same thing. You would be doing many girls a big favor if you would print it in your column. Thank you, Abby.

"Girls need to 'prove their love' through illicit sex relations like a mouse needs a hattrack. Why not 'prove your love' by sticking your head in the oven and turning on the gas? Or playing leap frog in the traffic? It's about as safe."

"Clear the cobwebs out of your head. Any fellow who asks you to 'prove your love' is trying to take you for the biggest, most gullible fool who ever walked. That 'proving' bit is one of the oldest and rottenest lines ever invented! Does he love you? It doesn't sound like it. Someone who loves you wants whatever is best for you. But now figure it out. He wants you to: Commit an immoral act... Throw away your self-respect Risk the loss of your precious reputation. And risk getting into trouble."

"Does that sound as though he wants what's best for you? This is the laugh of the century. He wants what's best for him: he wants a thrill he can brag about at your expense... Love? Who's kidding whom?"

"A guy who loves a girl would sooner cut off his right arm than hurt her. In my opinion, this self-serving so-and-so has proved that he doesn't love you. 'Proof' of this kind always finds Don Juan firing of his sport. That's when he drops you, picks up his line, and goes casting elsewhere for bigger and equally receipt, James says clamy.

Humphrey Is Likely Choice for VP Spot

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—The suit President Johnson tailored for his vice presidential running mate, although he hasn't named his choice yet, would fit Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota for his vice presidential running mate, although he hasn't named his choice yet, would fit Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota very neatly.

The 53-year-old Humphrey had been mentioned, along with others, as a vice presidential possibility. But by two successive actions Thursday Johnson seemed to narrow the choice down pretty close to Humphrey.

At a news conference Johnson listed the qualifications for a vice presidential candidate to be named by the Democratic convention late in August. He said he should be a "man that is experienced in foreign relations and domestic affairs."

Humphrey, with 15 years in the Senate, is experienced in both fields.

He has been a very active member of the Foreign Relations Committee since 1953; has traveled Europe and Latin America; had an eight-hour interview with Premier Khrushchev in 1958 and gave one of the first, if not the first, insights into the Russian-Chinese split that is now wide open; in 1957 suggested the possibility of an American-Russian nuclear test ban treaty which the Senate made a reality in 1963; and was one of the originators of the idea of a Peace Corps which became a fact under President Kennedy.

In domestic affairs Humphrey has fathered or supported many pieces of legislation but perhaps his most memorable achievement was as the principal manager of Johnson's civil rights bill which Congress passed this month.

Johnson further said: "I would like for him (the vice presidential candidate) to be a man of the people who felt a compassionate concern for their welfare and who enjoyed public service and was dedicated to it."

The first bill Humphrey introduced after arriving in the Senate in 1949 was one to provide hospital care or the elderly through Social Security. He offered it in each succeeding Congress until this became a major program, still unrealized, of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

And no one enjoys public service more than the bouncy, energetic, and practically indefatigable Humphrey; a friendly man well liked by his fellow senators.

"I would like for (the vice president) to be attractive, prudent, and progressive."

Humphrey's supporters, particularly liberals, would say he filled those requirements. And Johnson added this: "I would like him to be one who would work cooperatively with the Congress and with the Cabinet and with the President. I would expect him to be one that would meet with overwhelming approval of the delegates."

The sentiment of the delegates, under the stress of the convention, is impossible to predict. But Thursday The Associated Press made public a poll of the delegates on their vice presidential preference. It showed Humphrey the No. 1 choice, and Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy No. 2.

Humphrey worked extremely well with President Kennedy, who knocked him out of the 1960 presidential race by beating him in the primaries that year, and has worked extremely well with Johnson. The two men are friends.

They have been since both of them came to the Senate in 1949. Humphrey says it was Johnson and the late Sen. Walter George, Georgia Democrat, who got him on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in 1953. He's been there since.

Humphrey and Johnson worked together in getting this year's civil rights bill through. As for working cooperatively with Congress — Humphrey is one of the most persuasive leaders of the Senate. It wasn't always like that. In his early days he was too brash, too rigid in his liberal pronouncements and positions, and too talkative. He's still talkative and can talk on practically anything.

As the years went by he realized that a rigid liberal position might be stylish among some liberals but was ineffective in Congress.

He says now: "If I believe in something, I will fight for it with all I have. But I do not demand all or nothing. I would rather get something than nothing. Professional liberals want fiery debate. They glory in retreat. The hardest job for a politician today is to have the courage to be moderate. It's easy to take an extreme position."

At his news conference Thursday Johnson also mentioned one more qualification but later

Drought Has Hit Sections of Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Drought has set in much of Western Arkansas. Cattlemen are selling their herds and hauling hay from other states.

The eastern half of the state—Arkansas' heaviest agricultural area—has not been hit by the drought yet. Soybeans, cotton and rice are reported in relatively good shape except in scattered areas missed by rain.

Northwest Arkansas is the hardest hit section. Farmers in 16 counties have been given permission by the Agricultural and Soil Conservation Service to graze livestock on land in the soil bank.

Three farm agencies in Pope County are suing lumber trucks to haul hay from Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska.

Logan County farmers have received three railroad carloads of alfalfa from other states and seven more carloads have been ordered.

Washington County Agent Carl Rose said marketing of cattle was proceeding rapidly in Northwest Arkansas because of a shortage of pastures.

"Pastures are completely burned up and they're providing very little grazing," he said. "They're so dry, some of them would burn."

The drought comes on the heels of last summer's severe drought—the worst in Arkansas history. Rose said subsoil moisture never was replenished in Northwest Arkansas.

Roy Bass, agricultural statistician for the Crop Reporting Service in Little Rock said pastures are short all over the state but the critical area is Western Arkansas.

"But it looks like the main row crop area of the Mississippi Delta is in pretty good shape," he said. "There are localized dry areas even there, though."

Austin Ledbetter of Russellville Soil Conservation Service office said "People are swarming in there to buy hay." He meant the imported hay.

W. C. Young, Pope County agent, said row crops be some damaged "but it will be some time before the extent of damage can be determined."

Pop is one of 20 counties that has received federal aid for reseeding pastures. The farmers pay half of the cost. Vance Churchill, county ASCS manager, said many farmers were borrowing money to pay their share.

The University of Arkansas had planned a 4-H Club crop study day at Fayetteville earlier this week, but it was cancelled.

watered it down. He said "I think he should be a man that is well received in all the states of the union among all our people."

It's doubtful Humphrey, ardent champion of civil rights, would be well received in the South. Johnson had second thoughts and said "I don't think that anyone that I ever heard mentioned would be perfectly received everywhere."

Later in the day Johnson called newsmen together again and said it would not do for him to recommend any member of his Cabinet, or anyone who meets regularly with the Cabinet, for second place on the Democratic ticket.

This eliminated Robert Kennedy. But it also in one stroke eliminated others who had been mentioned, like Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, Adlai E. Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, and Sargent Shriver, Kennedy's brother-in-law and director of the Peace Corps.

Anything, of course, could happen at the convention which is free to reject Johnson's choice and pick any vice presidential candidate it pleases, including Kennedy.

Johnson's aides cautioned newsmen against interpreting his statement as opening the gate for Humphrey or anyone. But it seems that Humphrey fills many of the qualifications deemed necessary by Johnson.

China Directs Rebels in Viet Nam

By MALCOLM W. BROWN
SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—South Viet Nam charged today that Red Chinese advisors retrained regulars from Communist North Viet Nam in the terrorist attack on the Mekong River delta hamlet of Cai July 20.

The charge was made to International Control Commission made up of India, Canada and Poland, responsible for overseeing the 1954 Geneva agreement on Viet Nam.

Raiders killed 16 women and 24 children and wounded 40 other women and children in the attack on Cai. Be.50 millimeter fire on the homes of military personnel. The government said about 40 troops also were killed or wounded.

"Red Chinese military advisors took part in the Communist attack," a government communiqué said. "Their shouted commands to the aggressor forces could be heard above the din of battle. It is almost certain that some of the enemy bodies left behind in a mass grave were those of Red Chinese."

U.S. intelligence officials have said repeatedly that they have seen no evidence to show regular North Vietnamese units are operating in South Viet Nam.

Premier Nguyen Khanh's regime during the past few weeks has called repeatedly for extending the war to North Viet Nam and if necessary, Red China. Top Vietnamese officials are known to feel that this would be the only satisfactory way of ending the war here.

Communist ambushers struck again today. They killed 8 soldiers and wounded 14 of government road-clearing detail in the rice country 30 miles north of Saigon.

because there were no crops to study. Benton County requested additional relief aid last week. It already had been declared a drought disaster area. The county ASCS met with farmers last week and decided to request an expansion of the livestock feed program and grazing of soil bank lands.

Practically no hay is being harvested in Northwest Arkansas. Jackson County Agent John Croy of Newport said the drought had reached as far east as his county. He said conditions were comparable to a year ago and that crops throughout the county were spotty.

But at Jonesboro, Craighead County Agent Herbert Russell said conditions were good. "The rain in the last two weeks has been spotty, but more widespread than at any time since May," he said. It has helped both cotton and soybeans. Amounts varied from a trace to more than an inch.

Rice was reported a week to 10 days ahead of schedule. In Mississippi County on the state's eastern border, rains during the past two weeks have greatly relieved drought conditions, County Agent Keith Bilyrey said. An earlier drought restricted the planting of soybeans.

Jefferson County reported no drought conditions. Some areas had too much moisture. The county was short of hay because of a previous drought.

Union County Agent Joel Ferguson said a majority of his area was in critical condition from drought. Corn and other vegetables have deteriorated to the point where even an extensive rain would not help.

Cotton and hay are critical, as are pastures and forage crops, he said. Garland County Agent Duval Poindexter said crops in his area were in bad shape but local showers had prevented a serious drought. "Pastures are short and will be short on feed this winter," he said.

The county ASC committee is planning to apply for the feed program in light of an unusual amount of livestock sale. Poinsett County was reported short of moisture and soybeans were slightly damaged, but not as seriously as last year.

Randolph County Agent John Ferguson said rain over the past few weeks had been spotty pastures are dry, and cattle are going to market earlier. The corn crop has been hurt and hay is very short, he said. Cotton and soybeans and grain.

Th Cop Reporting Service said peaches near Clarksville were damaged slightly.

TO THE CITIZENS OF HEMPSTEAD COUNTY:
I wish to thank each voter who cast their vote in my behalf.
I will be grateful for your continued support in the second election.
Sincerely,
DOYLE JONES

In the second game of the night, the Giants downed the Red Sox 6 to 3, behind the strong hurling of Frazier. Barham was the loser. Barham also went 2 for 2 for the Red Sox.
In the final game of the night, the Yankees clouted the Braves 8 to 1. Sanders was the winning hurler and Pierce suffered the loss. Steve Harris played for the Braves after playing for the Giants because only 8 Braves showed up. He also hit an error aided homer for the Braves.

Picture Show

the photographs showed, Kuiper said, was that the smaller craters were rounded and soft-looking, completely lacking the sharp jaggedness of the big craters.
One explanation, he said, would be that they were made in dust, not in the hard basic material which seems to underlie the dust.
Kuiper said there were many evidences of volcanic activity in the moon's crust and that some of the steeper craters might be extinct volcanoes.
The excellence of the photographs was a fitting climax to the spectacularly accurate marksmanship on the Ranger New York Mets, held Houston to two hits - one an infield single - as the Mets blanked the Coils 3-0 on their way to a doubleheader sweep.

In His Hand

What high company; What a privilege to be held in the palm of the strong hand of God. No man dare trying to stand alone... to walk without Him. Just as surely, no man can fail when God is with him. "My Father, which gave them me, is greater than all; and no man is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand."

John 10:29, He has everybody in His Hand. He who would be wise should step upon the strong hand of God this day and take Him at his word. He said, "My grace is sufficient for thee."

Only trust Him. Help support His cause. Attend church every week and may the Lord ever be with thee.

You In The Church
The Church In You
— form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

THE CHURCHES OF THIS COMMUNITY ARE THE ONLY INSTITUTIONS WHICH HAVE AS THEIR MAIN FUNCTION, THE TRANSFORMING OF HUMAN LIVES. THEY ARE THE SIGN BOARDS POINTING THE WAY TO GOD.

Sponsors of these messages urge faithful church support. Through these pages the appeal is for all men to stand up and be counted... to combat Communism on all fronts... to be faithful to God.

OUR PASTORS ARE GOD'S SERVANTS WHO CALL THE SIGNALS AGAINST THE ORGANIZED FORCES OF EVIL. THEY INVITE YOU TO ENLIST ON THE SIDE FOR GOD...

It Is Paid For By Frims Who Hope To Measure Their Re-

People Attending Church.
